Students planning or considering a major or minor in History are urged to consult with an advisor as early as possible in their college careers.

Survey or introductory courses (when transferred) are accepted for no more than three hours per course on the major or minor.

History majors, particularly those planning to do graduate work in History, are strongly urged to include two years of foreign language study in their undergraduate programs.

The History Department strongly urges all History majors and minors, particularly those planning to teach History, or go on to graduate study, to participate in the CMU semester abroad program. Interested students should see a department study abroad advisor at CMU or the Center for International Education at CMU as early as possible.
